US Army Fellow, National Sex Offender Targeting Center
(US Marshals Service)

About

Following graduation, I returned to the Army and attended CGSOC at Fort Leavenworth, KS. A little less than a year later, I deployed to Afghanistan where I worked in a joint coalition (multinational) environment, mostly in protection (security, risk management, threat mitigation, etc). Fortune smiled on me, and after my return, I had the opportunity to serve as a battalion S3 (operations officer) in two different units. I now work for the NSOTC, an interagency organization headed by the US Marshals. Noelle, who I met while at DePaul, and I live in Arlington, with our two cats, Bob and Prince Tuesday.

Notable memory

My most formative Chaddick memory was certainly the trips. They possessed two key elements of any fulfilling experience: fun and educational. There are unparalleled opportunities to interact with leaders and policymakers as well as get to know my fellow scholars! Anyone reading this should go on the trip!
