

Michael Fodor

Hometown

Cleveland, Ohio

Recent positions include:

Project Manager, Emerald Build Environments

About

After graduation, I returned to my hometown of Cleveland to promote urban development strategies that strive for more economically, environmentally, and socially sustainable cities. I became an EcoDistricts AP and worked as a consultant on various projects, including the City of Lakewood's Resiliency Task Force, the MetroHealth Community District, and the Slavic Village EcoDistrict. Currently, I am a Project Manager at Emerald Built Environments, a sustainability consulting firm headquartered in Cleveland. During my spare time, I enjoy spending time with my wife and son, exploring new cities, and spending time outdoors.

Notable memory

In addition to the walking tours of Chicago, I loved the opportunity to travel to other cities in the Midwest to learn how cities large and small are approaching more sustainable development strategies.
