Greetings from the

It just keeps getting better and better, doesn’t it? I’m talking, of course, about the Department of Philosophy, but also about the newsletter you are now holding in your virtual hands. This is already the eighth edition of our newsletter. It is thus high time, I think, that we recognize here publicly Jennifer Burke, who single handedly solicits and gathers all the information in these pages and then organizes and designs it in such a thoughtful and attractive way. Let me thank her, then, in all of our names, for everything she does to give us this forum for sharing news about the department.

Initially conceived as a place simply to announce up-coming events in the department, the newsletter has evolved into something much more and a whole lot better. It has become a place to learn about the latest faculty publications, about graduate student accomplishments and awards, about the activities of our alumni, both former philosophy majors and doctoral students, about all the talks, colloquia, and conferences sponsored by the department and by the Humanities Center, and about other important events in our community.

I urge you all to take some time over the holidays to read through this eighth edition of the newsletter. You will see just how many extraordinary things our alumni, our current under-graduate and graduate students, and our faculty have done over the past six months—everything from publications, books and articles, to international conferences, prestigious awards (including an Emmy!)—even the birth of a child. I don’t think there is a department of philosophy anywhere that could rival this remarkable record.

If you appreciate getting this newsletter, I ask you to do just one thing in return: write to Jennifer Burke to thank her for all her work and include in your message information about what you have been doing—so that we can include it in our spring 2016 edition.

This event is free and open to the public.
The Collegium Phaenomenologicum convened for its fortieth annual session in the Umbrian town of Città di Castello from July 12–31, 2015. The Collegium is intended for faculty members and advanced graduate and postdoctoral students in philosophy and related disciplines. The core of the program consists in a series of three lecture courses, individual lectures, and intensive text-based seminars. A Participants Conference was held July 11-12. The theme for this year’s Collegium was “Derrida’s Seminars.”

Each year members of our department participate. This year a lecture course “Heidegger and the Question of Being and History” was conducted by David Farrell Krell, Professor Emeritus of the Department of Philosophy at DePaul. Prof. Elizabeth Rottenberg delivered a lecture during the course “The Death Penalty.” Grad Students, Bilgesu Sisman and Justin Boyd moderated two session in addition to presenting at two additional sessions. David Maruzzella and Michael Peterson also presented at sessions during the conference.

Of course, an enormous amount of effort goes into planning a conference such as this. The Director of the conference this year was our own Michael Naas, Professor and Chair of the Department of Philosophy.

The planning for the 41st annual session has already begun. “Embodying Temporalities” is planned for July 11-29, 2016.
Étienne Balibar, a French philosopher and a Distinguished Professor of French & Italian and Comparative Literature at the University of California Irvine, visited DePaul in October 2015. A conference organized around his work was sponsored by DePaul University, Kingston University, Philosophy Today and the DePaul University Research Council.

Prof. Peg Birmingham would like to thank all those who presented at the conference. It was a pleasure to host so many active scholars from around the globe.

Presentations:

“Living in the Interregnum’ - Hegelian Reflections on the ‘Dynamic Universal’”
Angelica Nuzzo, Brooklyn College & the CUNY Graduate Center

“Where Now for Europeanism?”
Mark Kelly, Western Sydney University

“Oxi, for St Étienne”
Martin McQuillan, Kingston University

“Capitalism and the Conflict Over Universality: a feminist perspective”
Cinzia Arruzza, New School University

“What Comes Before the Citizen?”
Dimitris Vardoulakis, Western Sydney University

“A Double Aporia: Universality and Human Rights”
Peg Birmingham, DePaul University

“On Civility”
Simon Morgan Wortham, Kingston University

“Spinoza’s Morality for Mortals”
Hasana Sharp, McGill University

Keynote Address: Étienne Balibar
“On the New Controversy of Universals”
TRAUMA, MEMORY, AND REPRESENTATION WORKSHOP

The workshop on Trauma, Memory, and Representation, organized by Prof. María Acosta, brought together scholars from different disciplines who have been concerned in recent years with the specific subject of trauma in the context of mass atrocity and extreme forms of violence. Prof. Cathy Caruth from University of Cornell, whose work in the intersection between trauma and literary studies is very well known, presented part of her new project entitled Addressing Life. There were two papers given by professors from the School of Law at Los Andes University in Colombia, Prof. Isabel Jaramillo and Prof. Esteban Restrepo. In their presentations, they addressed the philosophical and legal challenges of a just and adequate legal representation of trauma resulting from mass atrocity in the context of Colombian violent conflict. Elizabeth Rottenberg from DePaul University proposed a renewed reading of Freud’s notion of trauma and of the notions of temporality and spatiality at stake in Freud’s approaches to the subject. And Prof. Lissa Skitolsky, from Susquehana University, shared with us her personal experience as a philosophy teacher in a maximum security prison in Pennsylvania, oriented by a philosophical reflection on trauma, victimhood, and the way in which, in her opinion, the jail system in the United States reproduces what Holocaust studies have coined as the phenomenon of “social death.” Graduate students in the Philosophy Department, as well as other Faculty members of LAS, undergraduate students interested in the subject and Graduate Students and Faculty from other universities (Loyola, Northwestern, University of Chicago and UIC), participated in the discussions during the two days of presentations and engaged directly with each one of the speakers.

Maximum Security - A Theatrical Play

The workshop concluded with the presentation of the theatrical play "Maximum Security" from ID Theater Company (based on New York). Written by a Colombian writer (Piedad Bonnett) and directed by Nelson Celis, the background of the play is the Colombian conflict between guerrillas, paramilitary and army. With two actors in stage representing two characters, an ex-paramilitary and a street delinquent, the play addressed some of the explicit subjects of the workshop on Trauma and Memory: the conditions of confinement in prisons and the traumatic experiences related to extreme forms of violence. Through their dialogues and actions on stage the audience learned not only about their respective traumatic pasts, and their very difficult present in jail, but also of the atrocious forms of violence linked to a conflict tied to issues of radical social injustice. At the end of the play a roundtable was held with the Director of the Company, Germán Jaramillo, the two actors, Wilmar Saldarriaga and Victor Hugo Grajales, and Michael Naas from the Department of Philosophy at DePaul.

The two events were sponsored by the Universidad de Los Andes, the Department of Philosophy at DePaul, and the Vincentian Endowment Fund at DePaul University. Special thanks to Father Udovic for the support to bring the theater company to DePaul.

54rd Annual SPEP Conference

Emory University in Atlanta, GA hosted the 54rd Annual SPEP conference in October 2015. The DePaul Department of Philosophy was extremely well represented once again. Twenty-seven current or former members of the department attended. Elizabeth Rottenberg lectured during The Death Penalty course. Michael Naas spoke at the first Pleshette DeArmitt memorial session. Frédéric Seyler, Will McNeill, Peg Birmingham, Sean Kirkland and Rick Lee presented papers at the conference as well.

Many of our graduate alumni attended the conference, including: Rick Elmore, Peter Gratton, Sina Kramer, Dilek Huseynzadegan, Keith Peterson, Sam Talcott, Holly Moore, Andrew LaZella, James Griffith, Nathan Ross, Robin James, Marie Draz, Imge Oranli, Perry Zurn, Gerard Kuperus, and Molly Sturdevant. One of our undergraduate alumnus, Charles Prusik, who is currently in the PhD program at Villanova University also attended and presented at the conference as well as three of our current Graduate Students, Jennifer Gammage, Güçsal Pusar and Ian Moore.

With so many DePaul “people” in attendance, you’d think someone would have thought to snap a picture or two. As the Cubs saying goes, maybe next year!

New book edited by Prof. Elizabeth Millán

After the Avant-Gardes is a rallying call for all those who challenge artistic modernism. This is a collection of ten provocative essays on the arts by writers of varied orientations who share a skepticism about the exaggerated role of modernism and the successive avant-gardes in shaping what is accepted as valid contemporary art. The essays cover painting and other visual arts, literature, music, and general observations. Not an exercise in hand-wringing, it looks for different directions in which the arts may fruitfully evolve.

Reviews

“Anyone interested in where the arts are going, and especially anyone puzzled or exasperated by some of the works we are now expected to accept ‘as art’, will find this book exceptionally thought-provoking.”
--- Barry Smith, SUNY Distinguished Professor in the Department of Philosophy

“Elizabeth Millán has assembled a wide-ranging collection of provocative essays about the aesthetic category of the avant-garde. The concept of the avant-garde suggests that everyone is either ahead of everyone else or else falling behind-a case of ‘jam tomorrow and jam yesterday, but never jam today’. Instead of trying to outpace the present, Millán and her contributors linger with questions about where art is today and where it might go in the future.”
--- Andrew Cufrofello, author of All for Nothing: Hamlet’s Negativity

Please join us in congratulating Prof. Millán on this exciting collection!

Congratulations Elizabeth!

New translation by Prof. Will McNeill & Prof. Jeff Powell (DePaul Alum)

We are very excited and pleased to announce a new scholarly translation by Prof. Will McNeill and DePaul alumnus Jeff Powell, Marshall University.)

Martin Heidegger The History of Beyng (Indiana Press, October 2015)

The History of Beyng belongs to a series of Martin Heidegger’s reflections from the 1930s that concern how to think about being not merely as a series of occurrences, but as essentially historical or fundamentally as an event. Beginning with Contributions to Philosophy (Of the Event), these texts are important for their meditations on the oblivion and abandonment of being, politics, and race, and for their incisive critique of power, force, and violence. Originally published in 1998 as volume 69 of Heidegger’s Complete Works, this English translation opens new avenues for understanding the trajectory of Heidegger’s thinking during this crucial time.

Reviews

"Jeffrey Powell and William McNeill have provided a translation of enormous care, one that engages continuously and strenuously with the uniquely difficult balance between readability and fidelity." ---Peter Hanly, Boston College

"The History of Beyng is especially important because of its proximity to the very controversial Contributions to Philosophy. It will shed considerable light on the way Heidegger was thinking at the time." ---Drew A. Hyland, Trinity College

Please join us in congratulating Prof. McNeill and Prof. Powell on this wonderful accomplishment!

Cheers Will & Jeff!
New book edited by Prof. Michael Naas & Prof. Jeremy Bell (DePaul Alum)

We are extremely happy to announce a new scholarly translation by Prof. Michael Naas and DePaul alumnus Jeremy Bell, Georgia Southern University. Plato's Animals, Gadflies, Horses, Swans, and Other Philosophical Beasts, (Indiana Press, April 2015)

Plato's Animals examines the crucial role played by animal images, metaphors, allusions, and analogies in Plato's Dialogues. These fourteen lively essays demonstrate that the gadflies, snakes, stingrays, swans, dogs, horses, and other animals that populate Plato's work are not just rhetorical embellishments. Animals are central to Plato's understanding of the hierarchy between animals, humans, and gods and are crucial to his ideas about education, sexuality, politics, aesthetics, the afterlife, the nature of the soul, and philosophy itself. The volume includes a comprehensive annotated index to Plato's bestiary in both Greek and English.

Reviews -
"Will provide fertile ground for future work in this area." — Jill Gordon, author of Plato's Erotic World: From Cosmic Origins to Human Death

"Shows readers of Plato that he remains significant to issues currently pursued in Continental thought and especially in relation to Derrida and Heidegger." — Robert Metcalf, University of Colorado, Denver

"A unique and intriguing point of entry into the dialogues and a variety of concerns from metaphysics and epistemology to ethics, politics, and aesthetics." — Eric Sanday, University of Kentucky

Please join us in congratulating Prof. Naas and Prof. Bell on this wonderful composition!

Cheers Michael & Jeremy

Two New books by Prof. Emeritus David F. Krell

Introducing two new book by Prof. Emeritus, David F. Krell.

PHANTOMS OF THE OTHER

Part of the SUNY series in Contemporary Continental Philosophy (March 2015)

The work features a reconstruction of an unfinished text by Jacques Derrida from his most penetrating series of readings of Heidegger's philosophy.

During the 1980s Jacques Derrida wrote and published three incisive essays under the title Geschlecht, a German word for “generation” and “sexuality.” These essays focused on the philosophy of Martin Heidegger, taking up the rarely discussed issue of sexual difference in Heidegger’s thought. A fourth essay—actually the third in the series—was never completed and never published. In Phantoms of the Other, David Farrell Krell reconstructs this third Geschlecht on the basis of archival materials and puts it in the context of the entire series. Touching on the themes of sexual difference, poetics, politics, and criticism as practiced by Heidegger, Derrida’s unfinished third essay offers a penetrating critical analysis of Heidegger’s views on sexuality and Heidegger’s reading of the love poems of Georg Trakl, one of the greatest Expressionist poets of the German language, who died during the opening days of the First World War.

ECSTASY, CATASTROPHE

Part of the SUNY series in Contemporary Continental Philosophy (Aug 2015). Lectures on ecstatic temporality and on Heidegger’s political legacy.

In Ecstasy, Catastrophe, David Farrell Krell provides insight into two areas of Heidegger’s thought: his analysis of ecstatic temporality in Being and Time (1927) and his “political” remarks in the recently published Black Notebooks (1931–1941). The first part of Krell’s book focuses on Heidegger’s interpretation of time, which Krell takes to be one of Heidegger’s greatest philosophical achievements. In addition to providing detailed commentary on ecstatic temporality, Krell considers Derrida’s analysis of ekstasis in his first seminar on Heidegger, taught in Paris in 1964–1965. Krell also relates ecstatic temporality to the work of other philosophers, including Aristotle, Augustine, Kant, Schelling, Hölderlin, and Merleau-Ponty; he then analyzes Dasein as infant and child, relating ecstatic temporality to the “mirror stage” theory of Jacques Lacan.

The second part of the book turns to Heidegger’s Black Notebooks, which have received a great deal of critical attention in the press and in philosophical circles. Notorious for their pejorative references to Jews and Jewish culture, the Notebooks exhibit a level of polemic throughout that Krell takes to be catastrophic in and for Heidegger’s thought. Heidegger’s legacy therefore seems to be split between the best and the worst of thinking—somewhere between ecstasy and catastrophe.

Congratulations David!
Will McNeill presented “To the very threshold: Translating Er-eignis as the Telling of Beyng.” at the North Texas Heidegger Conference, University of Dallas, May 2, 2015. The conference is organized by the Dallas Area Seminar on European Inquiry (DASEIN). The 2015 North Texas Heidegger Symposium was sponsored by The University of Dallas.

Elizabeth Millán presented “Anti-Foundationalism, Art, and Philosophy: Schlegel’s Critique of Fichte” at the IX. Kongress der Internationalen J.G. Fichte-Gesellschaft, Madrid, Spain, this past September. She is pictured at a Madrid restaurant with two other speakers from the conference (and in the company of Spain’s famous jamon serrano).

María Acosta - Invited lectures x 3.
María Acosta was invited to give a talk by the School of Law at the Universidad de los Andes, in Columbia in August. She spoke about her new research project, “Grammars of Listening”, which is an attempt to respond philosophically to the question of the problematic relationship between memory and language in contexts of traumatic experiences resulting from extreme forms of violence.

María was also asked to speak at the NASPH conference in September in Philadelphia. Her talk was titled, “Ontology as Critique: Jean-Luc Nancy’s Inoperative Community”.

And finally, María was a guest speaker in Oregon in November for the Transamerican Experience Conference. Her lecture was titled “One hundred years of Forgotteness: Aesthetics of Memory in Latin America.”
Patricia Werhane - EMMY AWARD WINNER!

Yes, that’s right, a Philosophy Professor has won an Emmy Award! I’m not positive but I believe this is a first! Here are the details...

On Nov. 7, "Big Questions" took home an Emmy at the 2015 Chicago/Midwest Emmy Award ceremony. "Big Questions" is a TV program that explores new ideas and projects aimed at changing the way the world works. The show, produced under the aegis of DePaul's Wicklander Center for Business Ethics, received the award in the category for Outstanding Achievement in Public Affairs/Current Affairs Programming.

Executive Producer Patricia Werhane, DePaul's Wicklander Professor Emerita of Business Ethics, accepted the award. DePaul's Kim Clark, Tim Wolfer and Scott Arakawa also worked on the project, and multiple alumni contributed. The team follows local people and projects on location, covering issues ranging from wage theft in Chicago to healthcare and education in the villages of Tanzania. More than just a television program, each episode is a conversation among the show's hosts, guests and viewers, exploring new ideas and projects intended to change the world for the better.

Mary Jeanne Larrabee - Alumni Award

Mary Jeanne Larrabee was given the Alumni Recognition Award for Professional Achievement 2015 by her Alma Mater, Holy Names University, in California, Oct. 2015. The award for professional achievement is presented to alumni who have distinguished themselves through professional service during a career. Irene Woodward ’55, PhD, professor emerita of philosophy and president of Holy Names College from 1972 to 1982, presented the award to Mary Jeanne.

Kudos Mary Jeanne!

Kevin Thompson - Director of New LAS Minor - Bioethics and Society

Kevin Thompson and Craig Klugman, of Health Sciences designed a new minor in Bioethics and Society. Students can begin declaring the minor in WQ 2016. The minor offers students an interdisciplinary approach to the various moral, social, political, and conceptual issues that arise at the ever changing intersection of the life sciences, health, and society.

Congrats Kevin!
Mary Jeanne Larrabee presented two papers in the past few months. “Opening the Process: Processing the Openings,” was presented at the International Focusing Conference held at University of Seattle (WA), July 22-25, 2015.

Mary Jeanne’s 2nd paper, “De-centering the Realized Self: Towards a Process View of Enlightenment,” was presented at the Society for Asian and Comparative Philosophy meeting held in Monterey, CA, October 1-3, 2015. The conference theme, "The Past, Present and Future of Cross-Cultural Philosophy," is designed to invite scholars representing Asian and cross-cultural traditions of thought to present research on the many aspects of the legacies, lessons, challenges, and promise of comparative philosophy from its history to its current state and future prospects.

Sean Kirkland and his wife Lisa Mahoney (History of Art and Architecture, DePaul) are on sabbatical this year, spending the Fall in Jerusalem and the Winter, Spring, and Summer in Cyprus. Lisa is the recipient this year of the CAORC Andrew W. Mellon Mediterranean Regional Research Fellowship and the W.F. Albright Institute, where the two are residing in Jerusalem, has named Sean an Associate Research Fellow this year (primarily because he knows Lisa). The Albright's official motto is "Our future is in our past," and they are both pretty sure this is true, in some sense.

H. Peter Steeves - Keynote Lecture at PACT

Peter Steeves was one of the keynote lecturers at the Pacific Association for the Continental Tradition meeting in Seattle, WA in September. His talk was entitled, “The Return of the Man Who Mistook His Meal for a Hot Dog.” There were two dance numbers performed by Danielle Meijer during the lecture performance.

Nice one Peter!

Dissertation Successfully Defended -

Christopher Turner defended his dissertation, Aristotle and the Cynics on Happiness and Misfortune, on October 6, 2015. Chris’ dissertation was directed by Sean Kirkland. Will McNeill, Michael Naas, Richard Lee and Julie Piering were readers.

Well done, Chris!

Richardson Fellowship Awards -

Cameron Coates received a Richardson Fellowship to study in Freiburg, Germany during the Spring Quarter 2016. He plans to enroll in an intensive German language course called “A-Z Deutsch Sprachkurse”. Cameron’s study in German language will be important for his research in Ancient Philosophy and Aristotle.

Khafiz Kerimov received a Richardson Fellowship to study in Freiburg, Germany at the Albert-Luwigs-Universität. Khafiz plans to work and to set up contacts with experts in the fields of Heidegger studies who hold permanent positions at the University. His time in Germany will help him become fluent in conversational German and master academic writing in German.

Jeta Mulaj received a Richardson Fellowship to study in Paris, France during the Spring Quarter 2015. She plans to enroll in French language courses at the Alliance Française, attend philosophy seminars and conference in French academic circles, and begin a French translation project. Jeta is particularly interested in the work of Michael Foucault and Jacques Rancière.

Michael Peterson received a Richardson Fellowship to study at the University of Calabria (Consenza, Calabria, Italy) during the Spring Quarter. He plans to acquire a working knowledge of Italian and, a level of fluency that would allow him access to Italian primary sources so that he can begin a translation of Italian scholarship focused on the work of Jacques Derrida.

Congratulations JD Singer & Don Deere!

JD and Don were awarded the Michael Mezey Excellence in Teaching Award at the annual department orientation held in early September. Prof. Elizabeth Rottenberg the Associate Chair presented the awards to these “excellent” teachers.
Graduate Student

Dan Pepe participated in undergraduate recruitment activities and earned the gratitude of Carlene Klaas, the Dean of Undergraduate Admission for Dan’s dedicated enthusiasm and engagement with visitors during a classroom visit last spring.

Erik Beranek recently published a translation of Étienne Souriau’s The Different Modes of Existence (Univocal Publishing 2015), together with "The Sphinx of the Work," a long introduction by Isabelle Stengers and Bruno Latour (translated by Tim Howles). In it, Souriau (who, like William James and Gilles Deleuze, methodically defends the thesis of an existential pluralism) explores the contours of a world constituted by an inexhaustible array of different modes of existence.

Chris Turner has had an article, "Under Adorno's Spell: Bann as Central Concept rather than Mere Metaphor," accepted for publication by New German Critique. He is also translating correspondence between Friedrich Schiller and Johann Gottlieb Fichte for an upcoming volume entitled Philosophers and Their Poets: Reflections on the Poetic Turn in German Philosophy Since Kant, forthcoming for SUNY Press.

Amelia Hruby has been awarded a Graduate Assistantship in the McNair Scholars program. Amelia will be working with junior and senior McNair scholars as they apply to graduate schools.

Chris Turner has had an article, "Under Adorno’s Spell: Bann as Central Concept rather than Mere Metaphor," accepted for publication by New German Critique. He is also translating correspondence between Friedrich Schiller and Johann Gottlieb Fichte for an upcoming volume entitled Philosophers and Their Poets: Reflections on the Poetic Turn in German Philosophy Since Kant, forthcoming for SUNY Press.

Jennifer Gammage received a very competitive Love of Learning grant to support summer research from Phi Kappa Phi national honor society. She also recently accepted a position as a graduate instructor for the Arnold L. Mitchem Follows program, which works in tandem with the Ronald E. McNair program which supports underrepresented groups through an intensive research track and post-graduate preparation. And she presented papers at both SPEP and the Heidegger Circle conferences.

Gil Morejón recently presented “Quasi-Transcendental Aesthetics and the Sublimity of Events”, at the Canadian Society for Continental Philosophy Congress, Concordia University, Montréal, Québec, October 29-31, 2016.

Owen Glynn-Williams recently presented “Are the Oppressed ‘Weak’? And Hermeneutic Communism”, at the Canadian Society for Continental Philosophy Congress, Concordia University, Montréal, Québec, October 29-31, 2016.

Cameron Coates was invited to be part of a book panel that took place this past September at Loyola University Chicago, celebrating Andrew Cutrofello’s recently published book “All for Nothing: Hamlet’s Negativity” (MIT Press, 2014. He gave a paper entitled “Hamlet’s Time” at the event.
It is with great pleasure that we introduce to you....

SIT DOCTRINA INCPIUNT!
Robert Tapia, PhD ‘07 is an adjunct instructor of Philosophy at Triton College, in the Behavioral Science Department.

Robert wrote and recently published a biographical novel, Rodrigo (iUniverse 2015.) A book Reading Event is planned for February 6, 2016 from 2:00-4:30 PM at the Chicago Museum of Mexican Art.

In this fascinating tale based on true events, a young Mexican man attempts to acclimate to a new way of life and somehow survive the American dream during 1960s America.

Cheers Robert!

David J Gunkel, PhD ‘06. is Distinguished Teaching Professor in the Department of Communication at Northern Illinois University. He is the author of The Machine Question: Critical Perspectives on AI, Robots, and Ethics (MIT Press). David recently published his sixth book, Of Remixology: Ethics and Aesthetics After Remix (MIT Press 2016.) In Of Remixology, David Gunkel argues that to understand remix, we need to change the terms of the debate. The two sides of the remix controversy, Gunkel contends, share certain underlying values—originality, innovation, artistic integrity.

Congrats David!

DUOS is a student-based grant opportunity blending the energy and skills of doctoral and undergraduate students in the Philosophy Department in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences.

Please consider applying for this unique opportunity next fall. For further information see: DUOS Description & Guidelines this September at 20% Theatre Chicago in residence at the Prop Thtr. She is now working on a new play called TAR AND FEATHER, commissioned by Westmont College in Santa Barbara.

Kristin Idaszak (09) received her MFA in Playwriting from the University of California, San Diego this June. She is currently a Playwrights' Center Jerome Fellow. Kristin's play FUGUE FOR PARTICLE had its world premiere

Akiva Mattenson a current undergraduate philosophy major, delivered a paper at the 15th Annual Steven Humphrey Undergraduate Philosophy Colloquium entitled, “Lies, Myths and Regimes of Truth: An Exploration of the Political Implications of The Myth of the Metals in Plato’s Republic.” The conference took place on Friday, Nov. 13, 2016. Students from surrounding universities were invited to present accepted papers during this annual conference. The conference was held at the University of Louisville.

The Steven Humphrey Student Philosophy Colloquium is an annual conference of undergraduate philosophy bringing together students from around the region. Student papers are well-attended and generate lively discussion; the colloquium ended with Keynote Address, "Why Metaphors Make Good Insults", presented by Professor Elisabeth Camp, Rutgers University. The Colloquium is possible thanks to the generosity of Dr. Steven Humphrey.

BROTHERS, Sajad & Sean Husain are both DePaul graduates and entrepreneurs. Their business “INTELLECTUAL TECH” has all kinds of new things going on! They have a new website: Intellectual Tech and were interviewed for their local newspaper in June of this year.

They recently obtained a line of credit from Chase, so that when they obtain extremely large projects, they can hire people while they work to finish the project, and obtain final payment.

They are working to finalize a contract to be the exclusive tech vendors for a company worth $500 million.

And, they are working on a couple of small projects, including maintaining a website for a judge who is running for re-election. This contract runs until late March 2016.

Alumn, Michael Kazanjian, served as one of the faculty representatives, when he presented a paper on the philosophy of violence prevention sponsored by the Triton College Student Association discussion on recent campus incidences. He spoke at the 2014 conference of the Illinois Political Science Association where he also served as a moderator. Michael also spoke at the 2015 conference of the Midwest Political Science Association, and will speak at the 2015 conference of the Illinois Political Science Association.

"Hungry Hungry Humanities: Cézanne's Apples"

Paul Cézanne once destroyed a canvas because he felt that he couldn’t taste the apples he had painted there. In October, we celebrated the still life—seeing, sampling, and savoring Cézanne’s apples in an interdisciplinary investigation of the ways in which his talent and aesthetic philosophy changed everything. We started with an audience tasting of five heirloom apple varieties, then moved to discuss the role of the apple in the history of civilization and the history of art, with special attention paid to the central role that apples played in Cézanne’s still life work—a golden, delicious corpus that explored what it is to be an apple and what it is to be the sort of being that can experience an apple in so many beautiful ways.

"Making the Novel Novel: Don Quixote"

This year marks the 400th anniversary of the publication of the complete Don Quixote, arguably the first novel ever. Fittingly, our series concerning the meaning of the novel began at the birth of the novel itself, investigating the ways in which Miguel de Cervantes’ masterwork continues to find new ways to mean four centuries on. Over the course of an evening of performances and lectures, a multidisciplinary array of scholars and artists contemplated Quixote from multiple perspectives—interpreting the narrative through movement, with live performances of Romani and Flamenco dances; investigating how Crusade propagandists during the late sixteenth-century likely influenced Cervantes’ attitudes and his writing, and considering how illustrations accompanying the novel have historically opened up new interpretations of the text.

"The Horror of the Humanities 3: Brandon Cronenberg and Antiviral"

The DePaul Humanities Center’s third-annual Halloween event featured avant-garde exhibits pointing to the horror of everyday life as well as the relationship between horror and the history of the humanities, Halloween-themed improve comedy, a screening of the film Antiviral, and a talk and Q&A with the film’s director, Brandon Cronenberg.

WINTER 2016

Making the Novel: Lolita
January 20, 2016  *  7:00-9:00 pm
DePaul Student Center, Room 120
2250 N. Sheffield Avenue, Chicago

Focusing on a radical re-thinking of Nabokov’s classic novel, this evening will feature a live theatrical performance of scenes from the book followed by a panel conversation that will investigate the various artwork used as book covers for Lolita and the ways in which Lolita’s age may not really be the central moral question of the novel.

The Biblical Humanities: Noah’s Task
February 8, 2016  *  7:00-9:00 pm
St. Vincent DePaul Parish
1010 West Webster Avenue, Chicago

What has the Noah story meant historically and what does it mean for us today? This event will include a live performance of one act from the opera, “Noye’s Fludde,” by Benjamin Britten, with a cast of nearly two-dozen singers and musicians, followed by lectures on Britten’s opera, Noah and animal rights, and the meaning of the Noah story from the perspective of a climate change scientist.

In Conversation with Great Minds: Kyle Morton of Typhoon
February 1, 2016  *  7:00-9:00 pm
DePaul Student Center, Room 120
2250 N. Sheffield Avenue, Chicago

Portland-based indie rock band, Typhoon, operates as something of an eclectic collective, moving from sweeping orchestral arrangements to sparse and haunting minimalism, with lyrics that interrogate mortality, morality, and the basic questions of human existence. Front-man Kyle Morton brings a few members of Typhoon with him for a concert and then sits down on stage for a conversation about his art.

Hungry Hungry Humanities: Eating is Understanding
March 7, 2016  *  7:00-9:00 pm
DePaul Student Center, Room 120
2250 N. Sheffield Avenue, Chicago

Most scholars throughout history have had a negative outlook on food and drink—at best seeing such mundane topics beneath them and at worst seeing the “temptations of food and drink” as distractions not only from clear thinking but from the well-being of the mind/soul. In a special multi-sensory, interactive foodie event, Bob Valgenti (who received his Ph.D. in philosophy from DePaul in 2007) argues that a new day has arrived, and thinking is currently being awakened from its gastronomic slumber.

In cooperation with Theatre Y, the Humanities Center brings Glen Berger’s celebrated play to Chicago in a unique setting and with innovative new staging that lets the musicians and actors confront their audience in an intimate way. Join “The Librarian” as he presents his evidence for order in the universe in a play that investigates the madness of the Enlightenment, obsession, archives, identity, and faith.
The DePaul Humanities Center serves as a site for innovative discussion and research in the arts and humanities, engaging in interdisciplinary conversations that bring DePaul faculty, staff, students, and our Chicago communities together with the finest and most creative scholars and artists from inside and outside the academy. By means of its internal and external Fellows programs, its multiple yearly programming streams, and its commitment to supporting and spotlighting the most creative, rigorous, and ground-breaking approaches to scholarship, the Humanities Center strives to be the focal point in the university—and the larger communities in which it finds itself—for work within the humanities and arts.

The Scholar’s Game Night: DePaulywood Squares
April 6, 2016 * 7:00-9:00 pm
DePaul Student Center, Room 120
2250 N. Sheffield Avenue, Chicago
Nine DePaul professors answer trivia questions in the areas of their research while helping contestants chosen randomly from the audience to win big prizes in an update of the classic TV game show that brings together all the fun of rigorous scholarship, tic-tac-toe, and comedy.

Hungry Hungry Humanities: The Secret Life of Food
May 25, 2016 * 7:00-9:00 pm
DePaul Student Center, Room 120
2250 N. Sheffield Avenue, Chicago
What is the deal with fake meat? What goes on behind the scenes in a restaurant kitchen? What is to gain by having one food disguised to look or taste like another? Our series on food’s relationship to the humanities concludes by investigating the secrets our foods keep and the clandestine gastronomic questions that make ingestion and digestion so mysterious.

In Conversation with Great Minds: John Currin
April 28, 2016 * 7:00-9:00 pm
DePaul Student Center, Room 120
2250 N. Sheffield Avenue, Chicago
The preeminent figure painter of our time, John Currin is an artist who makes oil paintings that confront our assumptions about beauty, sexuality, art, and culture with unrivaled technique, talent, and intelligence. Currin comes to the DePaul Humanities Center to deliver the annual “Future of the Arts & Humanities Lecture” and to have an on-stage discussion about his work and the meaning of art.

Making the Novel Novel: Christian Bök and The Xenotext
May 9, 2016 * 7:00-9:00 pm
DePaul Student Center, Room 120
2250 N. Sheffield Avenue, Chicago
Experimental Canadian poet Christian Bök has bioengineered an extremophile bacterial life-form so that its DNA is not only capable of storing a poem but is, in fact, a biological “machine” capable of writing new poetry as a response to its naturally mutating genetic code. Given that this microbial life can survive harsh environments, dehydration, and even the conditions of deep space, Bök concludes our investigation of the novel by looking to what writing might be billions of years from now.
