Diálogo is a refereed journal published since 1996 (biannually since 2012) by the Center for Latino Research at DePaul University in Chicago. Diálogo seeks research articles of regional and national contexts with focus on diverse Latin American and U.S. Latino populations and experiences, recent immigration and places of origin, including indigenous experience. We welcome submissions throughout the year: articles that help bridge barriers between academic and local communities, book and film/media reviews, and interviews pertinent to Latino communities in the U.S., the Caribbean, and Latin America. Published in Spring and Fall, often calls are issued for special themes.

Cover: A bracero lies in bed and looks out a window in a living quarter at a camp in California. The Leonard Nadel Collection courtesy of Division of Work & Industry, National Museum of American History, Smithsonian Institution.

Photography, artwork, and other visual material included throughout are used with permission.

No part of Diálogo may be reprinted, reproduced, or transmitted in any form, beyond what is acceptable according to the Fair Use Policy, without written permission from the Diálogo editorial office. Send requests for permission to dialogo@depaul.edu.
