

RANSOMING THE CAPTIVE

Human Trafficking and Modern Slavery: Putting Forth a Victim-Centered Approach

February 22

11:30am Lunch Presentation*

John T. Richardson Library, Rm. 300 (2350 N. Kenmore Ave.)

**RSVP required by Feb. 19 to cwcit@depaul.edu (Lunch provided; limited seating)*

©eakmoto/123RF Stock Photo

Human trafficking, modern slavery—we don't see it happening, but we see its effects all around us—from the clothes we wear, to the food we eat, and the services we use. Each year, 17,000 vulnerable victims are trafficked across U.S. borders and exploited through forced sex or labor. Find out how the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB)'s Migration & Refugee Services is leading efforts here in the U.S. to combat trafficking and restore dignity to its victims through advocacy, awareness raising, training & technical assistance, and integration services.

2017-18 Corporal Works of Mercy Series

Found in the teachings of Jesus, the corporal works of mercy respond to the basic physical (corporal) needs of our human family. They give us a model for how we should treat all others—as if they were Christ in disguise.

Ashley Feasley is the director of policy for the USCCB's Migration and Refugee Services. She has testified before Congress, published numerous articles, appeared in the media to speak on migration-related issues, and taught at the law schools of Fordham University and the Catholic University of America.

More Information: <http://go.depaul.edu/ModernSlavery>

All are welcome; free of charge
Discounted parking available at 2231 N. Sheffield (with validation)
Sponsored by the Center for World Catholicism & Intercultural Theology (CWCIT)