Research Fellow, Shared Use Mobility Center

About

After I graduated from DePaul, I was offered a fellowship at the Shared-Use Mobility Center. It started as a short-term contract with simple tasks of updating data for the organization, but it has grown since then, and now I am participating in two additional projects.

One for a mobility assessment project, which allowed me to practice my GIS skills, and the other for a carshare provider. This job has been a great opportunity as it is my first formal experience working in transportation, which has been the area I wanted to focus and work on since I started my journey at the SUD program.

Notable memory

The trip to Milwaukee is the most memorable event that I had with Chaddick. I was new to the city and DePaul at that moment, and it allowed me to connect with students and professors while visiting urban projects and abording topics like transportation, food security, housing, and community engagement.
