About

Neil is a Procurement Administrator at the Chicago Transit Authority and a proud 2024 Chaddick Scholar. He holds Undergraduate and Master's Degrees in History from DePaul University, where he discovered a fascination with the important yet cataclysmic role of urban planning, renewal, and geography throughout American history. Prior to full time employment at CTA, Neil was an intern in CTA's Historic Archives, where he developed a digital exhibit covering the history of public transit in Chicago. In his free time, you can find Neil staring at old maps, playing piano, or giving a Chicago history lesson to anyone who will listen.

Notable Memory

My favorite moment with Chaddick has to be as an attendee of the 2024 Transportation Research Forum in Arlington, VA. I was able to meet so many incredible academics from around the country, spend quality time with my fellow Chaddick Scholars, and check another public transit system off my bucket list!
